

GUIDED TOUR PREVIEW

Racial Harmony Series: Chinatown Walk

Synopsis:

The historic district of Chinatown has developed significantly since it was first allocated to the Chinese community under the Raffles Town Plan of 1822. The traditional or commercial entities have been replaced, and the distinct hallmark of an unplugged life filled with the richness of roadside activity has disappeared. A resident in the 19th or early 20th century would probably not recognise the area we know today as Chinatown.

However, through conservation efforts, many of the original architecture still stands. With relentless curiosity and a few hints from our team, you may just discover these gems from the past! Let us help reveal specks of the authentic Chinatown right in front of your eyes.

At the end of this tour, you will experience key landmarks in Chinatown through the lens of history, and through this, appreciate the efforts we have made as a nation to preserve our heritage.
