

GUIDED TOUR PREVIEW

Racial Harmony Series: Little India Walk

Synopsis:

The historic district of Little India along Serangoon Road was unlike any of the other racial enclaves, in that it was not formed out of deliberate planning of the British colonial government. Instead, it was the sheer entrepreneurial spirit of our forefathers that organically developed this unique area.

From small businesses to community housing, places of learning to places of worship, the development of Serangoon Road to Little India is a story of fortitude and tenacity. It is also a revelation of how a community that was so ethnically diverse, could co-exist and grow together, forming the unique cultural district that we see today.

Through this walking tour, discover the colourful mixture of culture, business, religion and street art. Awaken your senses to the authenticity of the Indian community and leave with a lasting appreciation of this wonderful place.
